Finding Our Way (2022-23) was a knowledge-exchange collaboration that brought together the Unlock the Chains Theatre Collective, led by Euton Daley, with academics and artists from the University of Oxford and Oxford Brookes University. The aim of the project was to trace, through performance and art-making, a map of past and current African Caribbean experience in Oxford.

The performance of an extract of Daley's Still Breathing at the Library in All Souls – the first event of this kind in this space – was followed by a discussion with the audience.
