

EXAMINATION FELLOWSHIPS 2018

The College intends to make up to two elections to Examination Fellowships on Saturday, 3 November 2018 if candidates of sufficient merit present themselves.

Eligibility

The examination is open to any candidate who meets ALL the following conditions:

- a) has matriculated at the University of Oxford or will have registered for a higher degree at the University by 1 October 2018;
- b) has completed all the examinations necessary for a first BA or equivalent degree in any subject whether at the University of Oxford or elsewhere; and,
- c) normally, has successfully completed their first degree not more than ten terms before the relevant election., i.e. no earlier than Summer 2015.

Terms of Fellowship

The Fellowships are for seven years and cannot be extended. They are open to those who intend to pursue an academic career and the College pays the University fees of Fellows registered for a higher degree at the University of Oxford. They are also open to those who, while intending to take up non-academic work (such as the practice of the law, politics, the arts, diplomacy, etc.), nevertheless wish to maintain and strengthen their links with Oxford academic life. It is therefore a requirement that all Examination Fellows in the first two years of their Fellowship pursue a course of study or training approved by the College.

Examination Fellows are members of the Governing Body and are obliged to attend College Meetings (three per annum) and Election Meetings (two per annum). Fellows will be entitled to a study, dinners, and lunches without charge, and may be assigned single accommodation in the College or one of its annexes or, if resident within 25 miles of Oxford, are eligible to receive a housing allowance (see below). Fellows are conventionally required to dine in College at least twenty-eight times in each academic term of the first year of tenure. Non-academic Fellows can comply with this convention by, for example, spending the weekends during term in College and the weekdays working elsewhere. The College is prepared to consider deferment of this requirement in exceptional cases.

Remuneration, Allowances, and Entitlements

During the first two years Fellows are entitled to receive a stipend or scholarship allowance, which they may supplement, of up to £15,480 per annum (see Note below), and may be eligible for a housing allowance of currently £5,603 per annum. At the end of that period the Fellowship will (with the approval of the College) be extended for a further five years, during which a Fellow who decides to take up or continue:

- a) full-time academic work in the College will receive a stipend of £21,936 to £23,948 per annum, rising by annual increments to £27,474 to £30,033 per annum, the actual level of pay depending on whether and how much public lecturing is undertaken, plus a housing allowance of £9,533 per annum, if eligible;
- b) an academic or non-academic appointment elsewhere will receive a stipend of £3,254 per annum.

Full-time academic College Fellows may draw on academic allowances up to £3,750 per annum.

Note: All salaries and allowances are reviewed annually. In the case of Fellows who are already in receipt of another scholarship or Research Council funding, the College will top up the scholarship or grant to the same level given above for the remainder of the first academic year, after which the College will assume full responsibility for the payment of University of Oxford tuition fees and the scholarship and subsequent stipend.

Applications

Prospective candidates should make applications online by 4.00 pm (UK time) on Monday, 3 September 2018. Those who for good cause do not meet the normal eligibility criteria but nevertheless wish to be admitted to the examination should make their case when prompted on the online application form.

Examination Details

The examination will be held in the College, starting on Wednesday, 26 September at 9.30 am and ending on Thursday, 27 September at 5.00 pm (except for candidates who take the Classics Translation paper – see below).

For most candidates, the examination will consist of four papers of three hours each:

- two Specialist Papers in:
 - Law;
 - History (See Note below) (Each paper will contain a section of questions on History of the Ancient World):
 - Philosophy;
 - Economics;
 - Politics;
 - English Literature:
 - Paper I: questions on English literature (i.e. any literature in

- English) from before the Conquest to the present day;
- Paper II: a compulsory practical criticism question, followed by questions which candidates may answer in relation to literature written in languages other than English if they wish;
- Classical Studies (See Note below), with questions on Ancient History, Classical Archaeology, and Classical Literature:
 - Paper I: Greek world;
 - Paper II: Roman world;
- two General Papers.

Candidates must answer questions from one paper only in each session of the examination. They may, however, ask to see up to two specialist papers in any examination session, but can only answer from one paper in that session. The vast majority of applicants do their two specialist papers in the same subject, though that is not obligatory. While a degree in a specific subject is not a requirement for sitting a specialist paper in it, experience suggests that candidates without prior formal education in that subject, or a closely related one, are very unlikely to be shortlisted.

Classics Translation paper for select candidates

Note: There will also be a two-hour Classics Translation paper (one piece of Greek, one of Latin) for some candidates sitting the Classical Studies and/or History papers. This will take place at 9.30 am on Friday, 28 September. Candidates required to sit the Translation paper are those who answer:

- a) two or more of Questions 1–6 (Ancient History) on either the History I paper or the History II paper (or on both of them); OR
- b) two or more unstarred questions on either the Classical Studies I paper or the Classical Studies II paper (or on both of them).

The starred questions in the Classical Studies papers relate to archaeology and material culture and up to one-third of the questions on Classical Studies I and II may be starred in this way. See past papers on the College website for details. Examiners will be looking for an adequate level of competence in the translation papers.

Assessment Criteria

The following criteria will be used in marking all papers except the Translation paper:

Engagement

- Incisiveness of engagement with the question
- Range of issues addressed within or across essays
- Depth and sophistication of comprehension of issues and implications of the question
- Directness of answer to the question

Argument

- Coherence of argument
- Analytical clarity and power
- Intellectual penetration
- Originality and/or independence of thought

Information

- Relevance of the deployment of information
- Knowledge of original sources
- Range, depth and detail of evidence cited
- Accuracy of information

Organisation & Presentation (See Note below)

- Clarity and coherence of structure
- Clarity, fluency, and elegance of prose
- Correctness of grammar, spelling and punctuation

Potential

- Potential for future intellectual development

Note: These criteria will be interpreted in the light of the University's policies and individual assessments regarding candidates with specific learning difficulties, e.g. dyslexia.

Further advice on what the College is looking for in candidates can be found on the College website.

Past Papers

Examination papers from previous years may be seen on the College website.

Equal Opportunities

Applications are particularly welcome from women and black and minority ethnic candidates, who are under-represented in academic posts in Oxford. In order to enable the College to monitor the effectiveness of its equality policy and procedures, all candidates are invited to complete the confidential recruitment monitoring form which is processed entirely separately from the applications, and plays no part in the selection process.

Requests for Special Examination Arrangements

Candidates who require any special examination arrangements to be made for them should indicate this on their online application, or apply to the Fellows' Secretary no later than 3 September.

Visa Requirements

Applicants from outside the European Economic area are asked to note the UK's visa requirements (website: <http://www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk/>).

Timetable

Tuesday, 25 September	5.00 pm
	Candidates are invited to attend a meeting in the Hall when the Warden and others will talk about the Fellowship and take questions.
Wednesday, 26 September	9.30 am – 12.30 pm	Specialist Paper I
	2.00 pm – 5.00 pm	General Paper I
Thursday, 27 September	9.30 am – 12.30 pm	Specialist Paper II
	2.00 pm – 5.00 pm	General Paper II

For candidates required or wishing to sit the Classics Translation paper:

Friday, 28 September	9.30 am – 11.30 am	Translation Paper
----------------------	--------------------	-------------------

(any candidate due to attend a graduation ceremony at 11.00 am should contact the Fellows' Secretary in advance so that alternative exam arrangements can be made)

All examinations will take place in All Souls College.

Dress for examinations

Men are expected to wear a suit, tie, and gown at the examinations. Women should wear equivalent attire. Sub-fusc clothing is not required.

Ink

Candidates are requested to use BLACK ink or ballpoint pen for all scripts.

Mobile Phones

Mobile phones and other communication devices must not be taken into the examination.

Lunch and Accommodation

Candidates are asked to make their own arrangements for lunch and accommodation.

Short-listing of Candidates

The College will prepare a short list of candidates by Tuesday, 23 October, at the latest. Candidates not short-listed will also be notified by email on or around that date.

Viva for Short-listed Candidates

All short-listed candidates will be invited to a viva in the presence of Fellows of the College on the morning of Saturday, 27 October. The vivas solely concern the candidates' scripts and issues raised by them.

Fellowship Election

The Fellowship Election will take place on Saturday, 3 November and Fellowships are normally tenable from that date, though in some circumstances deferral may be agreed.